

Rural Health Care Delivery Fund

Application for $50 Million Stabilization Funds Coming Soon!

The New Mexico Health Care Authority (HCA) will accept applications for the Rural Healthcare Delivery Fund (RHCDF), a $50 million state investment designed to support essential healthcare services in rural communities across New Mexico.

Funds support ongoing operational costs for rural healthcare providers and facilities, helping maintain quality care.

Rural healthcare providers and facilities are encouraged to apply and take advantage of this opportunity to support the continued delivery of critical healthcare services in New Mexico's rural and high-need communities.

Visit the HCA website for more information and updates.
